THE LATEST.

Arguments in the hearing before the Court of Appeals in the Louisville contested election cases were continued yesterday, when J. C. Dodd spoke for the Democrats and Helm Bruce for the Fusionists. Mr. Dodd contended that the only basis of the campaign by the Fusionists was abuse of the Democrats, and that even Mayor Barth's mother was spared. He cited the speech delivered on the day before by Marshall Bullitt as an example of the character of the campaign by the Fusionists. The arguments will be concluded to-day, when four hours will be given to speeches.

Witnesses in the trial of William Britton, charged with complicity in the murder of James Cockrell, testified at Lexington that they had talked to Jim and Alex. Hargis before giving their evidence in the case. Efforts were made by the defense to establish an alibi for Britton and break down the testimony of John Smith, who made a confession, implicating several men, among them Britton. The testimony given by several of the witnesses at former trials was produced by the Commonwealth to contradict their statements made at this trial.

The Court of Appeals yesterday sustained the act of the Legislature, passed at the special session last spring, fixing a tax of one and one-quarter cents a gallon on all rectified whisky made within Kentucky. The decision means that the rectifiers will have to pay to the State between $300,000 and $400,000, unless the Supreme Court of the United States, to which an appeal probably will be taken, should reverse the decision of the Kentucky courts.

Thousands of women and children paraded the streets of Owensboro last night in the interest of the temperance cause and to try to win votes in the local option election to be held to-day in Daviess county, including the city of Owensboro. The fight has been bitter and business was at a standstill all day yesterday. Each side is confident of victory, and it seems that the negro vote will decide the issue.

In a desperate fight at close range in the same poolroom in which three men were killed last Christmas, Horace Stringer and William Gooch shot and killed each other at Sturgis as a result of a quarrel over the borrowing of money from a guard at one of the mines. Each was shot twice, and any one of the bullets would have caused death. The men were union miners.

The American Academy of Political and Social Science, which yesterday began its eleventh annual meeting in Philadelphia, has taken for its general topic "American Colonial Policy and Administration." A number of well-known publicists, including delegates who attended the peace congress in New York this week, will participate in the discussion.

Benedict Gimbel, the wealthy Philadelphia merchant arrested in New York Thursday on charges of attempted bribery and extorting improper influence over a sixteen-year-old boy, attempted to commit suicide in a hotel at Hoboken, N. J. He is now in a New York hospital and his condition is critical.

Before the first annual session of the American Society of International Law, Secretary Root yesterday delivered an address on the controversy between Japan and the United States. Secretary Root said there was never at any time any danger of war between the two countries.

The report made by Dr. Kennard, sent to investigate famine conditions in southeastern provinces of Russia, shows that twenty million people are facing starvation. Residents there are selling themselves and all they possess to secure food upon which to sustain life.

MINERS FIGHT DUEL TO DEATH

Shoot At Close Range Until Both Are Dead.

Four Bullets Find Vital Spots In Human Bodies.

More Blood Spilled On Scene of Christmas Battle.

STURGIS WILDLY EXCITED.

Sturgis, Ky., April 19.—[Special.]—Horace Stringer and William Gooch shot each other to death in Holman's poolroom here at 6 o'clock this evening, in almost the same spot where three men were killed in the fight on Christmas night between the union miners and guards of the West Kentucky Coal Company. Stringer was shot through the abdomen and heart, and two bullets passed through Gooch's brain. Both men died almost instantly.

Sturgis is wildly excited to-night, the shooting having stirred everybody, following, as it does, the battle of only a few weeks ago. On account of the excitement it is hard to get the exact details of the affray, and many conflicting stories are afloat. The battle was over so quickly and was so deadly that the few men who happened to be witnesses can give only a poor description of what took place in the little room.

Each Prepared For Trouble.

It seems that the men expected trouble, and each was prepared for the other, each having a revolver. The cause of the quarrel between the two, who had been close friends previously, was the loan of a dollar to Gooch by one of the guards at the mine. It was said that Gooch borrowed the money from a guard, who was involved in the fight here on Christmas night. Stringer objected to the other man borrowing from one of the guards, who was regarded as an enemy of the union.

This afternoon Stringer and Gooch went into Holman's place and began playing pool on a table which is for rent there. They played for a time, and then the quarrel was begun again. Stringer reproached the other man for chumming with a guard, even to the extent of borrowing money from him, and the men quickly became angry.

Shoot At Close Range.

At close range, each pulled his revolver and began to shoot. The first shot is a question; it is not known who fired it or where it struck, but it is certain that Gooch fired after being struck in the head by one and perhaps two bullets. Standing almost against each other, the men fired until both were on the floor dead.

Witnesses say that five shots were fired, but the fifth shot is unaccounted for, and it may be that only the four shots, either of which would have caused death, were fired during the fray. On account of the excitement it is not known whether the revolvers of the men have been examined.

Both In Trouble Before.

Gooch was one of the principals in the tragedy here Christmas evening between several union miners and guards at the West Kentucky Coal Company mines. In that fight three men were killed and four wounded. Stringer was tried at the last term of court for killing a negro nonunion miner. He was acquitted on the grounds of self-defense.

MUST KEEP FISH-HOOK IN HIS STOMACH

FARMER SWALLOWS BAIT WHILE FIXING TACKLE.

COMPLICATIONS WITH TUMOR SOON RESULT.

OPERATION TOO DANGEROUS.

Lexington, Ky., April 19.—[Special.]—Lee Adams, a well-known young farmer of this county, who lives with his father, Charles H. Adams, near Athens, was in Lexington to-day to consult with physicians with regard to having taken from his stomach a fish-hook which he swallowed several days ago.

The latter part of last week Mr. Adams bought a package of fish hooks at a store in Athens and took them to his home to refit his tackle for a day's fishing. That night he got out several old lines, and while he was going over them, putting on a hook or a cork when needed, he held a fish hook in his mouth. While he had a large hook in his mouth he was suddenly seized with a fit of sneezing and before he could remove the hook he had swallowed it. Calling to his mother, he told her that he had swallowed the hook, explaining that it was near the roof of his mouth, and that he could touch it with his finger. However, as the end of which the little spear is attached was foremost in his throat, he was afraid to attempt to pull it out, as he feared it would probably catch in his throat.

A peculiar fact about the case is that Mr. Adams had been suffering for some time from some trouble in the stomach, presumably a tumor. The hook has aggravated this and he is now suffering much pain. The physicians whom he consulted to-day could suggest no relief from his trouble, except through a surgical operation. The presence of the tumor, however, makes this quite dangerous, and the victim of the accident is placed in the peculiar position of having to keep the fish hook in his stomach in order to save his life.

While he is now suffering great pain, the physicians believe that the hook may finally become encysted and further suffering be prevented. Mr. Adams, however, will probably come in to one of the hospitals to-morrow where, after a careful examination, it will be decided whether or not an operation will be performed.

STARVATION FACED BY TWENTY MILLION

AWFUL CONDITIONS IN SOUTH-EAST RUSSIA DESCRIBED.

MEN, WOMEN AND GIRLS SELL THEMSELVES FOR FOOD.

DISEASE ADDING TO HORROR.

London, April 19.—Writing from the Russian famine district, Dr. Kennard, who was sent by the Society of Friends to investigate conditions among the peasantry, draws an appalling picture of the suffering. After calling attention to the urgent and immediate need of funds, he says:

"This is the worst famine Russia has known. No less than 20,000,000 people distributed throughout the Southeastern provinces cannot live, without aid, to see another harvest. I may say that this figure has been not only approved by the Zemstvo organization, but also by the Government.

"Funds will be needed to the end of July to feed all these millions, and then the harvest will bring relief, but there are many hundreds of thousands to whom the harvest will not bring relief, for they have neither land nor cattle. The few cows that are in existence are in such a pitiful condition that they are useless for milking purposes. The result is that babies and young children are being forced to eat coarse black bread and the indigestible young cabbages, which are luxuries to the adult Russian peasant, but are death to the baby.

"These people have sold their all, and in most cases have likewise sold in advance all that the harvest might bring them. They have sold themselves and their work, and from all over the Southeastern provinces reports are coming in of young women and girls forced to prostitute themselves to obtain food. For these suffering people, to whom the coming harvest means nothing, relief must be afforded during the whole of the coming year. Meanwhile, epidemics of disease add terrible conditions." Dr. Kennard makes an urgent appeal for thinned milk, meats and meat juices.

PAST 100 YEARS OLD; WILL WED IN AUGUST

LONG WAIT OF TWO TRUE LOVERS BRINGS REWARD.

"PARENTAL OBJECTIONS" REMOVED, THEY WILL MATE.

SWEETHEARTS SINCE YOUTH.

St. Louis, April 19.—Announcement was made to-day that on August 26 next John B. Bunden, who on April 1 was 101 years old, will be united in marriage to Miss Rose McGuire, who is almost 100 years of age. The wedding will take place on Mr. Bunden's estate near Tatesville, Tenn. He has been visiting relatives in St. Louis for several weeks and has just returned to Tennessee. Bunden and Miss McGuire were sweethearts in Tennessee in her youth. Her parents, of English descent, would not consent to their marriage, and finally returned to England, taking their daughter with them. Bunden went to California and acquired considerable wealth. He never married. From California he returned to Tennessee and bought his birthplace near Tatesville. He decided to hold a reunion of old friends on his estate this year and sent out numerous invitations. Not long ago he received a letter from Miss McGuire. Correspondence followed and he renewed his offer of marriage and was accepted. The date for the wedding and the reunion of friends has been set for August 26, on the bride's birthday anniversary, when she will be 100 years old.

Bunden has long, white hair and a flowing white beard. In June he will go to Preston, Lancashire, England, to escort his intended bride to his Tennessee estate. John B. Bunden, of St. Louis, a namesake, will be best man.

Utter Loses His Sole Supporter.

Providence, R. I., April 19.—On the fifty-sixth ballot for the election of a United States Senator in the Senate to-day, Representative Latham, of Cranston, who since the first ballot has been the single supporter of former Governor Utter, announced his vote for Wetmore. The vote to-day stood: Goddard, Democrat, 41; Colt, Republican, 33; Wetmore, Republican, 21.

ANOTHER BLOW TO RECTIFIERS

Must Pay Tax of Cent and Quarter a Gallon.

Act Passed At Special Session Upheld.

Will Cost Dealers Between $300,000 and $400,000.

FURTHER APPEAL PROBABLE.

Frankfort, Ky., April 19.—[Special.]—The Kentucky Court of Appeals to-day upheld the constitutionality of the legislative act of the special session of the General Assembly of 1906, placing a license tax of one and one-quarter cents upon every wine gallon of compounded, rectified, blended or adulterated distilled spirits, known as single-stamp spirits, produced in the State. The whole court considered the question of the constitutionality of the act, and unite in an opinion written by Judge Hobson. The question will now likely go to the Supreme Court of the United States for final adjudication. The decision of the court on the legislative act was announced in a case of the Brown-Forman Company, of Louisville, against the Commonwealth, on appeal from the Franklin Circuit or State Fiscal Court, and the opinion affirms a judgment of that court.

Test Case To Decide All.

The action was instituted on behalf of the Commonwealth to recover the taxes provided for in the act. The appellant company had, on June 20, 1898, filed a report with the State Auditor showing goods compounded from single-stamp spirits and other goods which it had compounded from double-stamp spirits. It declined to pay taxes on the goods made from the double-stamp spirits, and the suit was to recover the amount of such taxes. The court below overruled a demurrer to the petition and sustained a demurrer to the answer, and entered judgment for the amount of taxes prayed for in the petition.

It was insisted for the appellant company that the act is invalid under Section 11 of the Constitution of Kentucky, which requires that a legislative act shall relate to but one subject, and that it be expressed in the title; that it is invalid under Section 171 of the Constitution for the reason that the act levies a property tax, and is not uniform within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax; that the act is in conflict with Section 180 of the Constitution in that it does not specify the purpose for which the tax is levied; that the license tax is only to be paid upon goods made from single-stamp spirits, and, lastly, that the act conflicts with the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Upheld In All Points.

Answering these contentions, the court, in its opinion to-day, says that the subject is expressed in the title of the act; that the tax levied by the act is a license tax and not a property tax; that Section 180 of the Constitution does not refer to license taxes; that what the Legislature had in mind was the rectified product, not the character of spirits used in producing it, and that the license tax imposed by the act is upon the occupation of rectifying in this State. The court says: "The members of the committee are Adit Gen. Henry R. Lawrence, Col. J. Emory Allen, of Lexington; Col. W. H. Denhardt, of Bowling Green. The committee will be in session for several days, considering the law and regulations of the guard service. Their report will be submitted to the Governor as Commander-in-Chief for his approval. The opinion of the court follows in full:

Opinion of Court.

Court of Appeals of Kentucky, April 19, 1907.—(To be reported.) Brown-Forman Company, appellant, vs. Commonwealth of Kentucky, appellee. Appeal from Franklin Circuit Court. Opinion of the court by Judge Hobson.

"An act relating to revenue and taxation, providing for license taxes on compounded, rectified, adulterated or blended distilled spirits, known and designated as single stamp spirits, and providing penalties for violations of its provisions. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: 'Sec. 1. Every corporation, association, company, co-partnership or individual engaged in the business of compounding, rectifying, adulterating or blending distilled spirits, known and designated as single stamp spirits, shall pay to the Commonwealth of Kentucky a license tax of one and one-quarter cents upon every wine gallon of such compounded, rectified, blended or adulterated distilled spirits.

"Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of each corporation, association, company, co-partnership or individual engaged in the business of compounding, rectifying, adulterating or blending distilled spirits, known and designated as single stamp spirits, to make and deliver to the Auditor of Public Accounts on the 30th day of June, in each year, a true and correct statement of the amount of such spirits, known and designated as single stamp spirits, made during the six months then ended, and such other information as the Auditor may require, and at the same time pay into the State Treasury, through the Auditor, the amount of license tax due thereon, as provided, imposed by the act preceding section.

"Sec. 3. Any corporation, association, company, co-partnership or individual shall engage in the business of compounding, rectifying, adulterating or blending distilled spirits, known and designated as single stamp spirits, without having first obtained a license from the Auditor of Public Accounts, as provided, imposed by the act preceding section.

WAR FOR SUPREMACY OVER THE PACIFIC

PREDICTED BY THE PREMIER OF AUSTRALIA.

TALKS TO BRITISH GOVERNMENT FACE TO FACE.

SHOCK FOR THE DIPLOMATS.

London, April 19.—Field Marshal Lord Roberts, president of a banquet given this evening at Claridge's by the Pillgrims' Society in honor of the various colonial Prime Ministers who are in London for the colonial conference. It was the most brilliant of the honors accorded the visiting Premier.

Those who delivered speeches were Sir Edward Grey, Alfred Deakin, Premier of Australia; Sir Joseph Ward, Premier of New Zealand; Alfred Lyttelton, T. W. Smartt, Commissioner of Public Works for Cape Colony; the Duke of Devonshire, and Lord Roberts. Sir Edward Grey referred to the mistake Great Britain had made in the colonial policy in a former century, when she could not be expected to repeat. Lord Roberts and Mr. Smartt spoke of the ruin of the Anglo-Saxon nation, and reminded the hearers that Americans were taking part in the banquet.

The most striking addresses were delivered by Sir Edward Grey and Alfred Deakin. Sir Edward remarked he feared the colonies would be the only ones to come to the conference. He said that the colonies were not the problem of England, saying the mother country had no Asiatic populations as menacing rivalry. HARGIS TALKS TO WITNESSES

Shows Great Interest In Their Testimony

In Trial of Britton For Murder of Cockrell.

Daily Conferences Held In Leland Hotel.

DEFENSE OFFERS TESTIMONY.

Lexington, Ky., April 19.—[Special.]—The feature of the Britton trial to-day was the admission of two of the leading defense witnesses, W. M. Griffith and Luke Campbell, that they were in Alex. Hargis' room at the Leland Hotel last night, where they were coached as to what they would testify to-day. Senator Alex. Hargis was present at the time, and June Jett, brother of Curt Jett, employed as clerk in the Hargis store, showed them up to the room.

Griffith admitted, under vigorous cross-examination of Commonwealth's Attorney John R. Allen, that he had talked with Judge James Hargis and Senator Alex. Hargis every day since the present trial began, and was a daily visitor at their quarters at the Leland Hotel. These admissions tended strongly to show the interest of the Hargises in the trial, and to indicate that they are behind the defense of Britton.

Many Minor Witnesses.

A number of the comparatively unimportant witnesses were introduced to-day by the defense in the Britton trial to contradict evidence which had been given by various witnesses for the prosecution, John Smith, who gave such sensational testimony for the Commonwealth, being the chief target at which the defense's volleys of denials were directed.

The most interesting incident of the day was a contest of swearing between Anse White and his cousin, Fed White, which resulted in no decision, although Anse, with the aid of Commonwealth's Attorney Allen as second, had a shade the best of the bout. Anse had given strong testimony for the prosecution yesterday, and to-day Ted stated on the stand that Anse had told him, in the interval between the proceedings for trial for James Hargis and their trial here, over a year ago, that the story he had told on the application for bail and repeated yesterday, was not true, but that he had given it on the promise of Sam Jett to get Anse's brother Tom, who was accused of murder, off easy.

Anse was recalled to-day and emphatically denied his kinsman's charge. This, however, had been threshed out before at the Hargis trial.

Contradicts Smith.

W. N. Griffith, a farm hand of the Hargises, contradicted John Smith's story in many details, but was unable to remember other details than those contradicting Smith. Newton Campbell heard the shot which killed Cockrell and thought one man might have fired them if he had a double-action pistol. The Rev. Henry Hiner, pastor of the Methodist church, of which Cockrell was a member, heard the pistol shots and Judge Hargis told him to look out or he might get hurt. Ben and Fed White said that Anse White was with them most of the day on which Anse said Judge Hargis had asked him to take part in a massacre and that they did not hear Hargis say anything of that kind.

Hargis To Testify.

The attorneys for the defense asked several questions tending to show that Judge Hargis did not surrender to Cockrell because he had previously surrendered to Sheriff Callahan. The court, however, ruled out such questions, saying that no officer would fail to arrest a man he had a warrant for because the latter claimed to have been arrested by some other officer. June Jett and James Brophy testified to unimportant details.

Judge Hargis and Ed Callahan arrived here to-night and will probably be placed on the stand for the defense to-morrow, though Alex Hargis will probably testify first. Curt Jett is being reserved as one of the last witnesses, as the defense is playing him as their strong card.

For the first time since the trial began Attorney Joutet, partner of Floyd Byrd, was in court to-day assisting the prosecution. Mr. Byrd remaining in Winchester.

Try To Show Alibi.

N. W. Griffith was the first witness the defense placed on the stand when the session of court began this morning at 9 o'clock. He testified that he works on the farm of Elbert Hargis in Breathitt county, and was working there on the day James Cockrell was killed. He stated that Elbert Hargis and Britton went to Jackson about noon that day, Hargis asking the witness, who was resting in the yard, if they could make the hay by themselves, and he answered: "I guess we can." He denied that Hargis said, as Logan Goss testified, that he "had work for Britton in town." He said Britton had been sick and had done work to amount to anything for two or three days. He said Britton at the farm about 6 o'clock, "after he had come back from Jackson." He said that John Smith did not eat supper at the Hargis farm on the Saturday before Dr. Cox was killed. He said that the Kentucky river was so high that he could not drive a cow across it, and was obliged to keep the cow on that side of the river. This was a contradiction of John Smith's statement that he had waded the river that evening.

Worked For Hargis.

On cross-examination by Col. Allen, Griffith stated he had worked for Elbert Hargis since April, 1902, except one year. "Where were you that year?" Col. Allen asked. "I was at the defense," Griffith answered.

"We object," said Mr. Muir for the defense. With a significant smile Col. Allen said he would not press the question, and Mr. Muir then withdrew his objections, but the question was dropped. Col. Allen closely questioned the witness as to his recollection of other events on that day, in which the witness' memory proved woefully deficient. In answer to questions as to what other persons ate at the Hargis farm and other details, he answered: "I don't know."

Griffith admitted that at the last trial of the Hargises here he had stopped at the Leland Hotel and the Hargises had paid his bill. He said he was summoned by the Commonwealth for this trial. He admitted that he had gone into the room of June Jett, brother of Curt Jett, last night to go over his testimony at the former trial. Col. Allen asked Griffith to go to Jett's room he passed through that of Alex. Hargis, where he stopped for a "fix."

"What did you do with that breath?" asked Col. Allen. "I took a drink of water," was the answer, and a ripple of laughter in the courtroom. He said he also spoke to Alex. Hargis.

Griffith stopped from the stand he stumbled into the arms of the nearest juror, but hastily explained that he was not drunk, but was so sick he could hardly stand up.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. The left edge of the page is bound, showing the stitching or staples of the book's binding. The overall tone is warm and vintage.
